When transacting with you in the above noted products, ING acts on the other side of your order or transaction as a counterparty. ING may decide to hedge our exposure under the transaction by taking positions or executing other transactions with other counterparties. Any such positions and other transactions may not be consistent with, or may be contrary to, your interests or to positions which are the subject of your transaction with ING. Unless otherwise disclosed in writing, we are not necessarily acting in your best interest and are not assessing the suitability for you of any transaction or related financial instrument. ING may also facilitate the activities of other counterparties, or hedge transactions it has entered into with other counterparties, which transactions may have adverse effects on the value of any swap entered into between you and ING.

ING may act as, among other things, an investor, research provider, placement agent, underwriter, distributor, remarketing agent, structurer, securitizer, lender, market maker, trader or clearing broker. In those and other capacities, ING may take or hold positions in, or advise other customers and counterparties concerning, or publish research or express a view with respect to, a derivative product or a related financial instrument that may be the subject of the transaction between us. Acting in one or more of the capacities noted above may give ING access to information relating to markets, investments and products. As a result, ING may be in possession of information which, if known to you, might cause you to seek to dispose of, retain or increase your position in one or more transactions or other financial instruments. ING will be under no duty to make any such information available to you, except to the extent we have agreed in writing or as may be required under applicable law.
